

I've been thinking on how to make this document for a while, it's something that has stuck with me for the past 2 years and never got a chance to give a piece of my mind. After watching other people coming forward about their own experiences with this person I finally feel like I'm not alone in this.

I'm going to be crystal clear, this is not for something as stupid as "revenge" I'm just telling my side of the story so she considers it twice before doing something like this again. I'm also doing this for myself, so I can be at peace with myself, because I never had the courage to talk more publicly about it.

I'm gonna talk about an artist called Hopeless Peaches.

I'll be as brief and clear as possible. Sadly with the passage of time there were screenshots that were lost, but I still kept the most important and vital parts of her DMs with me. She made this issue public in the first place so if she ever allows me to message her again I have no issues into showing the full logs of our DMs

Also most of this document's space is taken by the pictures, there's actually very little text so don't freak out about how "long" this is.

Around 2 years ago, Peaches and I were friends, after expressing how much we wanted to collab with each other we agreed on making one.

From the start I told her my intentions were to make it part of the merch I was selling at the time, she seemed excited about it and even offered the idea of making either a poster or a t-shirt

Well if you wanna record it, maybe I could try and do a cool Glitchtale poster type of drawing Like... I've done a Betty/Amber reflection collab with Kitmast (tho his computer broke mid stream xP)

I'll do some doodles and see what comes out the best :3

Camila Jan 9, 2018 16:33

i was thinking

on making art relating bete and amber so i can sell it as a poster and stuff like that or as a shirt design

i just haven't come up with a nice concept

Hopeless Peaches Jan 9, 2018 16:39

So something for a poster or t-shirt? 🤔

Hopeless Peaches Jan 9, 2018 16:40

Here's a random doodle of a design

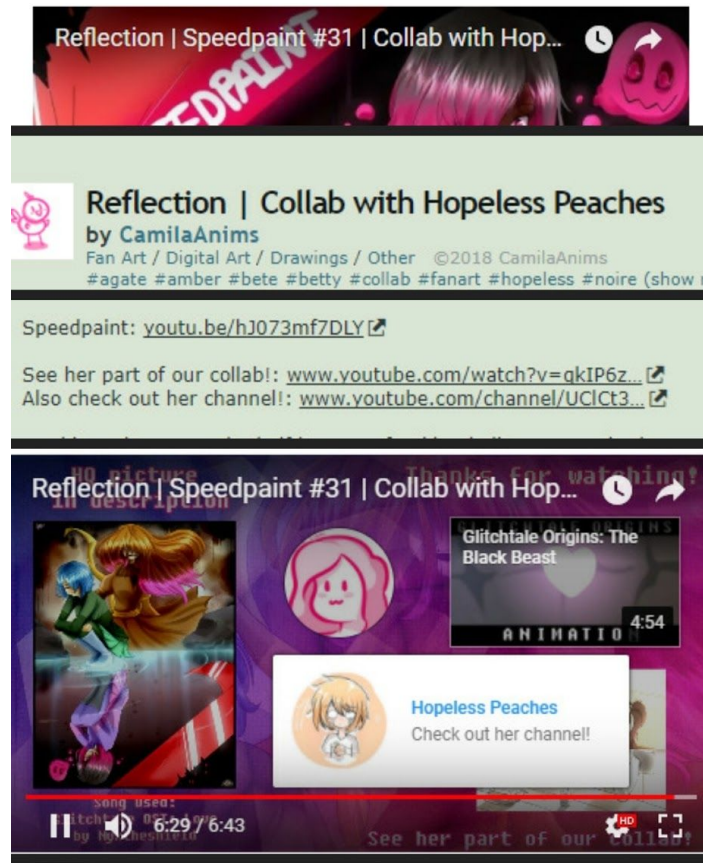

We came up with the sketch concept and then I finished the lineart and coloring. It was all good, I posted a speedpaint and posted the poster for sale. This was the poster in question:

As you can see it's a poster that can be put upside-down. I thought it was a cool idea to let people decide which side they wanted to see upright. So I put my signature in one corner and hers in the other.

Later, she started DMing me concerned about “her not being credited” and her signature being “hidden”, as I mentioned above the signatures were meant to be in that position there was no ill intent. As for the credits, I did credit her everywhere from the start:

Collab with HopelessPeeaches. Sketch by her Lineart/coloring/shading by me! First poster to include Bete and her true origins

She started acting very defensively about our collab and kept talking about “my art”, this threw me off and then she finally asked me about the poster being sold. She expressed that she felt uncomfortable about it being sold, to which I immediately asked if she wanted me to take it down, which I did within the minute

Hopeless Peaches Yesterday at 22:29

How long has it even been in the store?

You can tell how oblivious I am lol

Camila Yesterday at 22:29

uhhhh the day after i put up the video i think but what's with all the questions
what do you need? lol

Hopeless Peaches Yesterday at 22:31

I just don't like that it's been sold really as I kinda helped

ok

i'll take it out then

I took down the poster from the merch store and made a grand total of:

Reflection

0 of 1 were reserved. This means payment will not be collected on any pending orders and no orders will be produced.

$0 dollars. Nothing was sold, and I thought that was the end of the story.

The next day, I wake up to comments flooding my youtube channel calling me a thief, a scammer and a huge variety of curses.

To this day I don't know what motivated her to do what she did, but Peaches made an entire post on the Undertale Amino:

(Sorry for the poor quality these screenshots are the best I could find from 2 years ago)

Why Not to Collab with Camila Cuevas

This creator... a channel with 660k subscribers who already would be getting lots of money in ad revenue for our collaboration anyway, would undermine a small creator's work they had done for them for free.

I was not asking for money from her, simply to not be used any longer. However, since she had outright stated my work meant nothing, and profited off "nothing", I will be fighting through this to stop her from thinking she can use small creators with no following to make money from.

If Camila Cuevas asks you for a collaboration, do NOT take it! She has robbed me of a lot of money, and ever since we collabed, she had thrown me to the curb even before I knew about all this. I've been shown no appreciation for my work and those who bought this poster had no idea they were funding theft.

I found out though... that she had sold our collaboration in her merchandise store for Glitchtale, and I had not even been credit for a long time until it was corrected (albeit misspelled) recently.

I confronted her about this when I found out, as many people could not even see my signature that had been (almost unbelievable to be a mistakenly) warped beyond recognition, flipped upside down and tucked away in the corner, half the size of her own clearer (and shorter) signature which was much clearly visible.

The money she was making off of our collaboration was a lot of money, as she stated to me that a lot of people wanted it, and it was priced at £16/$22 on TeeSpring.

If Camila Cuevas asks you for a collaboration, do NOT take it! She has robbed me of a lot of money,

(I wish I had saved all the screenshots from the full post but this is like 90% of the full thing)

So this happened. She posted this at a time where I was sleeping so I woke up to this around 8 hours AFTER she posted it. Everyone was talking about it, spreading it around. I tried to make a post of my own defending myself but by then the mods had already made a decision to take down both of our posts. Except hers was up for 8 hours and mine was up for 15 minutes...

Never once she showed a screenshot backing up her claims, and since amino tends to have a more younger impressionable audience, they believed it, with no proof whatsoever.

I have many health issues, one of the worst ones is my body not knowing how to cope with stress correctly. I had a very hard time at school assaulting me emotionally and physically during my school years and when this came up, having so many people yelling at me that I was a thief and that I had done all these horrible things, I froze up. I didn't know what to do, I went full defensive mode and I didn't know how to word myself. I couldn't defend myself because "I was the bigger youtuber" and making a video would be "attacking a smaller channel" so I was left with my hands tied.

I talked to her and asked her many times why did she do that, why lie about everything, she was always dismissive about it and NEVER once did she legitimately apologize as in, trying to right her wrongs...

She "apologized" by writing a full paragraph of how this situation has affected her mental health and how her depression made her feel bad. Not once did she clear up that what she stated in her post was false, not a single time did she say "you know what, we did agree to this and I did lie about all this" because she'll never own up to her mistakes. I responded to her "apology" by saying how she never stated that what she said was all a lie and instead victimized herself.

I could've handled this better but at the time no one would believe a thing of what I had to say, no one was interested to look at my side of the story.

It was all a "small youtuber good, big youtuber bad" pity story she made up. I felt a punch in the gut every time I thought about this.

After that I stopped talking to her all together, I wished her the best and hoped she'd seek mental health. Months passed without talking to her, BUT it didn't stop there. Peaches kept telling EVERYONE she met about "her story" about how I BULLIED HER in DMs, when never once did I message her for months.

She had this idea that everyone who found out about how she lied about me and confronted her was “a fan of mine that was sent to harass her” so now apparently I was also using my fanbase to harass her. She’s been framing me as a bully, a thief, she was also the one who started the rumors about me tracing my animations/art, when all I do is practice references, which I even CREDIT in my animations’s descriptions every time I do use them.

Finally, in 2020, I watched Luke’s video on Peaches, and what I thought was a one time thing she did for easy clout was actually how she built up her entire channel. She’s done the same thing to very close friends of mine that I won’t mention until I get their permission, making up lies about them or twisting the story to victimize herself.

I know I’m not perfect, I am a very flawed person and I’ve made mistakes in the past, but I’ve owned up to them and grew from them.

I really hope that by calling her out like this, she changes her ways, like I mentioned at the beginning, I’m not doing this because I hate her or want revenge or anything, I just want her to STOP, and acknowledge that she won’t get away with this behavior anymore.

I know that with this people will try to bring up past drama of mine, things that I’ve said out of ignorance and out of context screenshots to try to dismiss my story in all this. I’m all up for providing FULL context to any concerns people have about me. So if you have a question about something just ask, I have nothing to hide and nothing to be ashamed of. I’ve learned from my past mistakes and also learned a lot more english, so whatever poorly worded sentence I might have said in the past will never happen now.

An example of this would be the screenshots people have of me saying the word retarded, on my tumblr or whatever social media people got it from. The word itself doesn’t hold any meaning to me, in my country it just means “fool” only recently did I learn that it’s used as a discriminatory term and that it’s not okay to use it.

This was years ago, and ever since I've learned to be better, even though I don't agree with some aspects of the culture that comes with speaking english I will respect people's wishes and how it can really hurt them to use certain words. Even if I don't fully understand it, I'm willing to listen and improve.

Having been born and raised in Chile (in latinamerica) the cultural clash and misunderstandings when trying to type in a different language has been the primary cause of all the "drama" I've ever been involved in. Nowadays I have a better grasp of it all, and ever since I've stopped saying certain things that I know now are wrong.
